

Andrew Jackson to Andrew Jackson, Jr., June 6, 1833, from Correspondence of Andrew Jackson. Edited by John Spencer Bassett.

TO ANDREW JACKSON, JR.

Baltimore, June 6, 1833.

D'r Andrew, We arrived here half after 2 oclock P.M. without fatigue or injury, met by a number of the Citizens with the Steam Carrs 12 miles in advance of the City which took us into Baltimore in a few minutes, where we were met by a numerous croud. I have just retired from dinner, with an increased head ache, but trust that a nights rest will dispel it. I shall leave here on Saturday morning at 6 oclock and endeavour to reach Philadelphia on Saturday evening where I shall remain until Tuesday morning, and expect to receive a letter from you before I leave that city telling me how you all are. Give my love to Sarah and Emily, and kiss my little pet for me and believe me to be yr affectionate father

P. S. Present me kindly to Major Lewis and tell him to write to reach me at Philadelphia.